fficers and used by them to cover up improper payments made in the interest of society's former management dates back to the days of Henry B. Hyde, founder of the Equitable.

It was learned yesterday that the loan account was maintained by the senior Hyde for the same purposes for which it has seen used in recent years. The obligation t the time of Mr. Hyde's death in 1898 good in his name and the account was subsequently transferred to James W. Alexander and Thomas D. Jordan as trus-

The examination which the State Banking Department has made into the transaction does not, it was said yesterday, include a record of the payments made during the years that Mr. Hyde was head of the Equitable society. That a further examination would have to be made was thought probable yesterday, for the contention now is that the loan account was a purely personal transaction on the part of Alexander and Jordan and falls outside the scope of insurance investigation.

The announcement was made yes terday that Price, Waterhouse & Co. and Haskins & Sells, the public accountants who are going over the Equitable's books, have selected Douglas Robinson of 160 Broadway, President Roosevelt's brother-in-law, and John N. Golding of 9 Pine street to abpraise, examine and report on all real estate owned by the Equitable in the United States as well as all property upon which the society holds a mortgage.

The field in which the appraisers will have to work extends from Maine to California and covers between 1,500 and 2,000 parcels of property. The instructions given the appraisers are to report the true value of property upon which the society holds mortgages and to recommend what in their opinion is the best use of the property. The total value of the Equitable's real estate as stated in the society's last report was $36,895,647, of which more than $5,000,000 was in this city. The society's mortgage loans amounted on Jan. 1, 1905, to $81,628,709 on real estate valued at $144,604,350. There have been various reports since the present controversy began to the effect that the Equitable's real estate was greatly overvalued. It was said authoritatively yesterday, however, that although nobody can make an accurate prediction as to what the report of the appraisers will be, persons who know best believe that the values as carried on the books of the society will be

The "ridiculously low" offer which Edward H. Harriman made to James H. Hyde for his majority stock in the Equitable just H. Harriman made to James H. Hyde for his majority stock in the Equitable just before the Frick report was made public became known yesterday. It was $100,000, or about $200 a share, the par value being $100 and the stock dividends limited to 7 per cent. per annum. The price which Thomas F. Ryan paid has been given as $2,500,000. It was Mr. Hyde himself who designated Mr. Harriman's offer as "ridiculusly low." when he charged the railroad lously low," when he charged the railroad financier, Henry C. Frick and others, with having entered into a conspiracy to defraud him of his stock control. Mr. Harri-took Mr. Hyde off his feet, but he refused to consider the Harriman proposition. Then he went into the meeting next day and made the flery charges against Mr. Harriman which resulted in the latter withdrawing from the board.

A lawyer prominent in the affairs of the society under the old regime is authority for the statement that after the announcement of the sale of the Hyde stock to Thomas F. Ryan an examination of the will of Henry B. Hyde and the deed of trust under which the stock was held for the founder's son was made by certain of the old counsel and was made by certain of the old counsel and that the opinion of the lawyers was that the sale could not have been made with-was made by certain of the old counsel and that the opinion of the lawyers was that the sale could not have been made without some string to it.

That is, the sale, according to this lawyer, must have been made with some provision by which strict regard was paid to the clause in the deed of trust which forbids the sale of the stock until Mr. Hyde has attained his thirtieth year. He is now 29 years old. This lawyer admitted, however, that nothing definite had been asceptained by him.

Papers have been served on several of the defendants in the suit brought by the Attorney-General against the Equitable and the old board of directors. The list of counsel that will appear in the case is imposing.

Alexander & Colby will appear for James W. Alexander, Gage E. Tarbell, Thomas D. Jordan, Valentine P. Snyder, Henry M. Alexander and William Alexander; Anderson & Anderson for Senator Chauncey M. Depew and Alfred G. Vanderbilt; Sullivan & Cromwell for Cornelius N. Bliss; J. De Witt Warner for James B. Forgan; Guggenheimer, Untermyer & Marshall for James H. Hyde and William H. McIntyre; William A. Keener & Cluttes for Jacob H. Schiff; Winthrop & Stimson for Henry R. Winthrop; Baker & Peabody for David H. Moffat; Judge R. S. Lovatt for E. H. Harriman, and probably Alexander & Green for the Equitable society.

Besides the above, the following lawyers have been retained to represent other Equitable directors of the old board in the suit for an accounting brought by Senator Brackett on behalf of Mary S. Young:

Pierce & Greer for C. B. Alexander, George J. Gould and John J. McCook; Strong & Cadwalader for August Belmont, A. W. Krech and Henry C. Deming; Guthrie, Cravath & Henderson for A. J. Foster Is Said to Have Got Many Victims on "Honest Business" Advertisements.

William H. Foster, whose real name is said to be Anda C. Bert, was arraigned before United States Commissioner Shields yesterday charged with using the mails to defraud. According to the postal authorities Foster advertised under the head "Honest Business," offering to sell a half share in a paying concern for $150. Inshare in a paying concern for $150. Inquirers were informed that "Honest Business" wanted a bright young bookkeeper to sell watches and diamonds. "Honest Business" said he had had five years experience and would guarantee 120 per cent. profit on the watches and 98 per cent. profit on the diamonds. "And all you really need to have is $88.50 to pay the premium on a surety bond," the advertisements said.

Foster was arrested by Post Office Inspector Jacobs and Marshal Henkel at a hotel where he had arranged to meet a prospective victim. He waived examination and was held in $2,500 bail. He is said to have swindled a number of persons in New York, New Jersey and Connecticut.

GOSSIP OF WALL STREET.

"All the tips are making good these days, says a man who has friends in many com-mission houses. "Most of the tips are in the stocks no one has or speculates in, they make you think you have a buil market anyway. Yesterday I was told to buy 'Soo at 130 fer 140 right away, and I see it is up 8 points. I was told to buy Minneapolis and St. Louis early in the week. I see that is up 5 or 6 points. I was told on Wednesday that I was robbing my family if I didn't get some Twin City. That stock went up 2 points yesterday and 3 points to-day. A few days ago a friend telephoned me that he had 'a hot one.' His one best bet was Lackawanna. It was selling around 396. He told me it was good for 50 points right away. It has sold up more than 40 points since I got the tip. Then there was Northern Pacific. The last time it sold at 190. I was told there was more money in this stock than anything else on the list. Northern Pacific is up about 20 points. This Delaware and Hudson is another one of the 'hot' ones that have been handed me. I was told to buy it at 198 for all kinds of money. It sold to-day at 197%.

Some good judges of the market who are bullish on the situation expect to buy stocks

The action of Union Pacific puzzles a great many people. A month ago it sold at 131%, or higher than it closed yesterday. Since then it has moved back and forth within a range of five points. Other stocks have scored notable advances, but Union Pacific has failed to respond to various efforts to buil it. It is generally conceded that this stock could advance very easily to 140 if the right people took hold of it. But those who have most at stake in the property have shown inclination to bull the stock above this level. They are frank in saying that they think the stock is worth much more than its current price. It was bid up very easily yesterday morning soon after the opening. It advanced from 130% to 131% on transactions of 6,000 shares without an eighth re-action. The only level at which there was any considreable amount of stock was 131%. where 2,200 shares were met. Later in the day the stock reacted under realizing sales and closed at 130%. Most of the trading originated on the floor.

A Wall Street house which has had its bwn agents at work for several months studying the cotton crop says: "As to the volume of the crop, we did not wish to lend ourselves to the making of any sensational estimates, but certainly if the reports which we get represent the true condition of affairs—and we think they do—the crop must certainly be a very small one, as the chances are decidedly against it. Of one thing we are assured-a market that will show the widest fluctuations. While the average price of cotton for the season of 1905-6 may show figures that closely approximate those now prevailing, the fact must not be lost sight of that, following so closely upon the sensational markets of 1903-4, the trade is left in a very nervous and apprehen-sive state; and as the already unfavorable conditions will make possible the most highly colored reports (circulated for speculative and manipulative effect) the market will in all probability at times attain very dangerous heights. We look for a small crop and for a tendency to higher prices."

"Soo" was advanced yesterday from 132 to 138% on purchases of only little more than a thousand shares. The day before it was advanced from 129% on about the same amount of trading. The stock has advanced nearly 10 points on transactions of less than

The trading in Illinois Central yesterday amounted to 300 shares.

The curious distribution of speculative activity is variously commented upon. The professional interest runs from one security to another. There is not enough commission house business nor enough pro-fessional trading to make a broad market. Some of the largest operators in stocks are away at summer resorts or in Europe and are paying very little attention to Wall Street. The most of them are carrying good sized lines of stocks bought at lower the present automatic repeater system of recording fire alarms and have given frequent warning that serious trouble would result if alarms were sounded from several backs asserted, had met the youthful financier on the night previous and had assured him that he would be all right. All he would need to do was to move that the report, when it was presented to the board, be adopted. The report nearly took Mr. Hyde off his feet, but he refused to consider the Harriman proposition. started the bull campaign-are out of the country and are paying little attention to the daily cabled quotations of American securities. They are big owners of stocks and are strength of the market is due to the conservatively bullish position taken by these large owners of securities who are not now in Wall Street. So long as they do not care to sell any of their holdings at these prices it becomes a comparatively simple matter for professional operators to mark up prices. The opposition to advancing prices comes almost entirely from professional cliques who are trying to make turns on the short side.

One of the Reading bulls bid 47% yesterday on the floor for any part of 20,000 shares of

It would take a severe break in the market to dislodge many of the stocks that have been bought in anticipation of higher prices in the fall. Some of the shrewdest operators in the Street, who have tried to trade in and out of the market, while maintaining a bullish position say that while it is easy to sell stocks, it is difficult to get them back. The reactions in the market have been so slight since prices began to improve in June that in and out traders have been poorly repaid for their efforts to make turns on the short side. Some of the people who lost their stocks in their efforts to make quick turns and had to pay higher prices to get them back say that they will stand pat on the long side of the market until they see something that they can really sell stocks on.

"The field of speculation in this country is really very limited as compared with that in Europe," says a broker recently returned from abroad. "I met an Englishman who was long of I don't know how many ounces of quinine.

The 3,500 shareholders of Delaware and Hudson do not seem to be in any hurry to part with their holdings at present record

The August crop report will be issued on Thursday. A favorable August report is usually expected to stimulate speculation in stocks, as most of the crop scares come before this report is issued, and if it is favorable this report convinces people of the certainty of good crops. The private, reports from the corn belt have been so optimistic during the last few weeks that it is expected the Government report will indicate a crop of unusual proportions. The report may throw some light on the question of the condition of the spring wheat crop, over which the experts are at odds.

LIBEL CASE WORRIED CRISWELL.

Krotel Says No Blackmall Charge Had Been Made Against Him. Friends of Robert W. Criswell, editor of the New Yorker and one of the chief directors of the Social Editors' Society, who committed suicide by jumping in front of a subway train on Thursday night, said yesterday that they believed that he killed himself because of worry over the charge of criminal libel made against him by Congressman Joseph Rhinock of Kentucky.

Criswell's friends declare that they do not think he was worried by the District Attorney's investigation of Criswell's connection with "America's Foremost Families," for which more than $6,000 has been collected in subscriptions.

Assistant District Attorney Krotel said yesterday:

"There was no other charge than the one for criminal libel pending against Criswell. It is true that we had been making a pretty thorough investigation of 'America's Foremost Families,' and in the course of that investigation Criswell and Robert A. Irving had been questioned. An examination of the books of 'America's Foremost Families' showed that over $6,000 had been collected and practically nothing paid for getting out the book. The money went to Criswell and Irving and two solicitors, A. De Wald Bloom and Leo M. Morris.

"Criswell was expected here on Monday to produce books we hadn't examined, but he didn't show up. The next day his lawyer brought me a letter from Criswell, who said that if the books were removed from the office it would hurt his business, but that I could look at them there. I sent Detective Flood, but he found no tangible evidence. It is true that we were thinking of starting criminal proceedings, but we "There was no other charge than the one evidence. It is true that we were tinking of starting criminal proceedings, but we had no complainant. Jackson Wallace might have been a complainant, but he got back the $500 he put up."

Alexander H. Wray, one of Criswell's friends, seemed to think that Criswell was mentally unbalanced. Robert A. Irving said that Criswell had been subject to fits of vertigo, but that he had no financial worries or family troubles.

CAN'T HAVE COOPER'S INCOME. Relatives Wanted Surplus of Incompetent's Money Divided.

The application of certain relatives of William F. Cooper, who was recently declared incompetent, to have his surplus income distributed among them was denied yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Greenbaum. Mr. Cooper, who is 85 years old and a bachelor, was once a Judge in Tennessee and owns considerable property there. His income is estimated at about $15,000 a year, of which but $4,000 is necessary for his support.

He had been in the habit for many years of distributing among his relatives, who include a niece, a nephew and three sisters, a considerable part of his yearly income. He also provided generously for some former servants, one of them an ex-slave who had been in the Cooper family for years. These recipients of his bounty have not been sharing in the surplus income since a committee of Mr. Cooper's person and property was appointed, and person and property was appointed, and they applied to the court for an order directing that allowances be made them on a scale similar to what they had received in previous years.

Justice Greenbaum says that he is not satisfied that the applicants are actually in need of these allowances, which he says were evidently intended to provide luxuries, and not necessaries, for them. He grants leave for a renewal of the application on proof that any of the former beneficiaries now need support.

SEEK RECKLESS AUTO DRIVER. He Put on More Speed After Striking a

Bieyele and a Wagon. BELLEVILLE, N. J., Aug. 4 .- The officials of Belleville are anxious to learn the name of the driver of a big touring automobile which passed along Mill street in this town at terrific speed to-day. The machine struck a bicyclist, severely injuring him, and also hit a wagon, smashing the vehicle and badly frightening the occupants, a woman and three children. After each accident the driver of the automobile increased his speed and got away before any one could learn his number. The bicyclist injured was John Hazard

The bicyclist injured was John Hazard of 91 Palser avenue, Passaic. The automobile tossed him about twenty feet and he was unconscious when picked up. His left shoulder blade was broken. James McDermott, who keeps a store at Mill and Bridge streets, says the occupants of the auto, two men and a woman, laughed when the machine struck Hazard.

The wagon struck by the same automobile was from the Home of Orphans of Odd Fellows at North Arlington. A woman connected with the home, with three children, was driving along Mill street in the Montgomery section when the machine struck the vehicle and smashed it. The occupants were shaken up.

WANDERED, DAZED, FOUR DAYS. Woman, Crazed by Lightning, Wanders

From Prospect Park to Millville, L. I. Miss Josephine Donohue, 38 years old, of 74 Douglass street, Brooklyn, slipped away from her father in Prospect Park during the thunder and lightning storm on Sunday and it was feared that she might have been drowned in the park lake. On Thursday afternoon she was found in a dazed condition sitting beside the road near Millville, L. I., and later was cared for by Abner Smith, Overseer of the Poor of Huntington, who managed to ascertain her name and address. How she came to get to Millville she either could not or would get to Miliville she either could not or would not tell.

At the time of the storm on Sunday she was with her father, Thomas Donohue. He and others sought shelter under the trees near the music stand, and then found that the woman was gone.

Mr. Donohue believes that she became temporarily deranged through fear of the lightning and ran away, not realizing what she was doing. She had been suffering from nervous trouble for some time. Her father went to Huntington yesterday and brought her home.
